

Geography Quiz

Here's something a little different this week. Can you figure out which country is represented by each of these flags? You could use an atlas to help you.

If you want an extra challenge, can you find out what the capital city for each country is?

Most countries around the world have flags. The flags have different colours as well as designs. While it is easy to assume that these colours mean nothing, if you look closely, you will find that they are actually symbolic representations of the values, ideals and allegiance of those countries, among other things.

Do some research to find out what the colours and symbols represent in these flags:
